the Allies; Kitchener Successful?

By Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The rumors of last week that the Entente Allies had determined to compel Greece to repudiate all claims that she might later have with the passage of allied troops across her territory have been substantiated by the inauguration of a partial blockade. This measure is expected to elicit an immediate declaration from the Greek government defining its intentions clearly without further hesitation and ambiguity.

Some dispatches from Athens go so far as to say this already has been attained as a result of Earl Kitchener's conference with King Constantine and that the king received assurances of a satisfactory measure. The British government, however, has not indicated that Greece has complied to the demands of the Allies.

Greece is described as prey of conflicting emotions—fear of Germany, whose military successes have brought the Balkan war theatre nearer, and her natural sympathy for the cause of the Allies—defeating opposite poles out of her present difficult neutrality. Some Greek newspapers regard the blockade of Greece as a violation of international law. It has caused a profound impression upon which immediate action is predicted.

For the time being military operations in southern Serbia have been almost suspended. This is regarded in England as an encouraging sign for the Serbians and their allies in view of the fact that a few days ago a Bulgarian ultimatum from Philip to Monastir appeared certain.

WAR ZONE AROUND
GREECE IS PLANNED

SALONIKI, via Paris, Nov. 22.—It is rumored here that the Entente Allies have decided to carry the campaign of blockade to the extent of establishing a war zone around Greece and cutting off all supplies. Greece expresses the hope that no such drastic action will be taken. The Associated Press has learned, however, that the French officials unofficially made the strongest representations to the throne that Greece give assurances of more active cooperation with the Allies.

Denis Cochin, French minister without portfolio, who has been conferring with Greek officials, has gone to the front.

BULGARIANS ARE BADLY HURT BY THE SERBS

PARIS, Nov. 22.—The report that the Serbians have won an important victory over the Bulgarians at Laskovsk, on the Nish-Belgrade railway, 25 miles south of Nish, is corroborated in a dispatch received today from the Serbian minister at Athens. The message says that a battle of several days, in which the Bulgarians sustained enormous losses, the remnants of their armies fled in disorder to the eastern bank of the Morava river.

The victory is regarded as a definite one, the message says, assuring that part of the line from further attack for some time.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The Italian liner Verona, from Italian ports for New York, was Saturday reported by wireless that she was being pursued by a submarine and afterwards that she had eluded the undersea craft to a few, is now safely out of the Mediterranean.

Word was received here that she passed through the Strait of Gibraltar today on her westward voyage.

ITALIANS WIN A BIG VICTORY NEAR GORIZIA

ROME, via Paris, Nov. 22.—Italian troops have made an important advance on the Isonzo front, especially on the heights northwest of Gorizia, according to an official statement issued today at the headquarters of the central staff. The ground gained was retained, it is claimed, in spite of vigorous Austrian counter attacks. The statement continues:

"Enemy aeroplanes threw bombs yesterday on Schio (15 miles west of Vienna) wounding slightly eight soldiers. One of our air squadrons under highly unfavorable atmospheric conditions caused by thick mist, released the bombs on the enemy aviation camp at Assevizan, on which more than 10 hand grenades were dropped. Our aeroplanes returned undamaged."

TEACHERS VOTE TO HOLD THE FAYETTE INSTITUTE EARLIER

Reason Given That Desirable Talent Is Available Week Before Christmas; Must Vote 36 to 13.

A poll of the principals in attendance at the Fayette County Teachers' Association here Saturday afternoon showed that less than the majority of the majority that the county teachers institute be held earlier than it will be this year. The vote was 36 to 13.

About 29 of the principals expressed their opinions on the subject. County Superintendent John S. Carroll explained that reason institute was held the week before Christmas this year was because that was the only period at which the talent desired was available. In expressing their preference the educators did not favor any particular time except that it be earlier than the week fixed for 1915. Some teachers favor holding it the last week in August, just before the schools reopen.

There are 8,192 retarded pupils in 632 county schools, representing a school population of 25,107, according to a report submitted at the meeting. The statistics were gathered by Bert Montgomery, supervising principal of the German township schools, who led the discussion. Fayette's percentage is 3.53.

A retarded pupil is one who is late in entering a grade. A pupil is supposed to reach a certain grade at a certain age. If he does not do so, he is known as a retarded pupil, without regard to the cause for his retardation. In this county the number is high, it is said, because of the fact that throughout the coke towns pupils enter school several years after they should and thus the percentage of retarded pupils is pushed upward.

In the first grades of the 632 schools included in the report there are 5,400 pupils, 1,253 of which are retarded. In the second grade there are 5,115, and 1,222 retarded; third, 4,624, and 1,402 retarded; fourth, 3,299, and 1,184 retarded; fifth, 2,231, and 811 retarded; sixth, 2,531, and 1,102 retarded; seventh, 2,031, and 749 retarded; eighth, 1,624, and 771 retarded.

Tracks in Effort to Overtake Train.

When Charles Serbo, otherwise known as William Leonard, a farmer of Chambersburg, was taken from Baltimore & Ohio passenger train No. 50 just south of the Youth bridge on Saturday afternoon, he waited until the train pulled out again and then made a dash for it. He was struck by the locomotive of westbound train No. 51 and so badly injured that he died at 11 o'clock Saturday night at the Cottage State Hospital.

Serbo, who was 55 years old and the owner of a farm up the Indian Creek valley, had spent the afternoon in Connelville and when he came to board No. 51 it was pulling out. He climbed on after the vestibule had been closed and hung on until the train reached the Hyndman building. There a brakeman took him off the train and conveyed him to the putdown on South Arch street. Apparently bent upon boarding the train again, the man ran across the tracks directly in front of train No. 51 which passed No. 50 at that point. Serbo suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

After lingering until 11 o'clock at the Cottage State Hospital, the injured man succumbed to his injuries. Coroner H. J. Wolf announced today that he will hold an inquest on Friday afternoon. He empaneled the following jurors: J. H. Kutz, M. D., Pryce, S. S. Clark and J. L. Stuber. The body was forwarded to the funeral parlor of J. L. Stuber and prepared for burial. Services will be held Tuesday in Holy Trinity Polish Church at Mount Pleasant with interment in the Mount Pleasant cemetery.

KILLED IN THE WARGerman Miner Loses Life Along the Austrian Front.

John Vithoefer, a German miner who worked for a number of years at the Wharton mine near Smithfield, was killed some time ago in a battle on the Austrian front, according to word received by relatives in this county. Aside from the fact that Vithoefer gave his life for his fatherland, his death reveals a pathetic story.

When John Vithoefer came to America and secured work in the mines, he was prepared to adopt this country as his own and during his residence in Smithfield he took out his first naturalization papers. He was a native of Germany and accumulated several thousand dollars by the time the Wharton mine was worked out. All the while he had in mind a girl in his native land, and shortly before the war broke out he returned to Germany to claim her as his bride. Mrs. Vithoefer had a goodly dower and with this and her husband's savings, they purchased a farm in Germany instead of returning to America.

This was before the war broke out. When Germany took up arms, Vithoefer was called to service. Leaving his bride he marched away and in the very first battle in which his command participated, a bullet reached his heart.

DYES ARE SCARCELocal Concerns Begin to Feel Effects

The reported shortage of dyes, caused by the cutting off of supplies from Germany because of the war, has at last made itself felt in this section. Dyes and chemicals that are turning down orders. Establishments of this kind buy their dyes by the pound and they find the source of supply practically cut off.

Drug dealers report no scarcely any dye in the packages dyed by manufacturers for changing the color of fabrics. Dyeing firms, however, would find it too expensive to purchase these packages dyes.

A report emanating from the dyes as to the effect that the blue coloring in overalls is practically exhausted and that as a result working clothes will soon appear in natural colors.

Greenburg Township Authorities.

An unusual enforcement of the truancy act was that by the Greensburg school authorities in compelling a 12-year old girl who had eloped some time ago to keep on with her school work until she complies with the compulsory education law. The girl is from Indian, living in Haddonfield, and just before her marriage she had been preparing to attend the Greensburg schools.

for the Office.

The boom of H. M. Kephart as a candidate for state treasurer has been launched. Mr. Kephart will decide within a short time whether he will announce his candidacy. It is likely he will. First announcement of his probable candidacy was made in a Pittsburgh newspaper yesterday.

Friends of the Connellsville man are said to be active in various sections of the state sounding out sentiment, and doing it unusually favorably. GIRL SPEAKS AT LASTFirst Words After Freedom Are to Ask for An Apple.

By Associated Press.

EASTON, Md., Nov. 22.—Grace Marshall, the young woman whose father and stepmother are charged with having imprisoned and their home near St. Michaels for nearly 12 years, spoke today for the first time since her liberation last Friday. She asked for an apple she saw on the table of her room in her aunt's home, where she is under the care of a physician.

Miss Marshall was imprisoned, it is alleged, after attempting to elope at the age of 16 with a man of whom her father disapproved. Marshall said he considered the act crazy, and as he could not afford to send her to an institution, he thought the only thing to do was to lock her up in her room. When released she weighed but 67 pounds.

Marshall is said to have admitted that the woman's stepmother was the only person who had seen her during the last three years.

NEW THOROUGHFARE TO SOUTH SIDE NOW
IS REAL PROBLEM*Closing of Pittsburg Street Shows Necessity of Another Route.*ONE STREET FOR ALL TRAFFIC*No Other Practicable Way For Vehicle Communication With Big
Residential District; Viaduct Over
Connell Run Is One Suggestion.

The need of at least one more thoroughfare connecting the South Side with the downtown section has been amply demonstrated during the past week by the closing of South Pittsburg street for a few days while it is being repaved. The severe storm of Thursday night came just as a time when the section of Pittsburg street between Willis road and Crawford avenue was closed to traffic. With street car service interrupted, it was impossible to reach the South Side by any means other than walking. During the storm few pedestrians cared to attempt a hike.

There are now two routes in addition to Pittsburg street, but neither of them is satisfactory. Until Arch street is paved it will not be a desirable street for teams, especially in rough weather. What work was done on Arch street the past summer made it worse instead of better. The new earth placed on the hill became a slimy, slippery surface that baffled teams and automobiles, even when the latter were equipped with chains. The South Side may be reached by way of Baldwin avenue, but this necessitates going down a dangerous hill into the hollow below Chestnut Hill cemetery, and then ascending one equally as steep and much more rough.

The paving of Arch street, as has been suggested by some, would not be a satisfactory solution to the problem. While some heavy traffic, particularly that towards South Connellsville, would be diverted from Pittsburg street, it is doubtful whether the route would be generally used. Arch street, between Main and the White Rock Millinery, is a narrow thoroughfare, partially occupied by the street car line. It is not easy to reach from the downtown district, although it is the Baltimore & Ohio passenger freight station in the vicinity of Arch street and Fairview avenue, the improvement of the street might become a necessity.

There is real need for a thoroughfare connecting the upper portion of the South Side with the eastern section of the town proper. This could be accomplished by the construction of a viaduct extending over Connell run from Willis road, in the vicinity of Prospect street, somewhere near Race or Vine. This would give a more direct route from the populous South Side district which lies east of Pittsburg street to either the Fairview section, or the downtown district. Although such a viaduct would prove somewhat expensive, the proposition is insignificant when compared with those bridges Morgantown and Fairview have had to erect to connect various sections of their community.

Friends of the viaduct declare that it would relieve South Pittsburg street of much traffic and afford a more direct route for South Siders than they now enjoy.

Development of the Isabella road district has been rapid. A viaduct such as proposed would give residents of that section a route into town which would save them many crossings each day, whether walking or riding.

RIGID INSPECTIONCompany D Gets Notice of Regular Army Test in January.

The United States Army inspection of Company D will be held in January. Advance notice to Captain C. Herwick is to effect that the organization must pass a rigid test this year. The agitation for preparedness for the war has resulted in steps being taken to see that all National Guard companies are up to the mark in every particular. Lieutenant Krueger of the United States Army will be here on December 8 to give special instructions to the guardsmen relative to the inspection.

Captain Herwick is holding drills each Tuesday. One hour is devoted to drill and another hour to schooling in military matters. Efforts will be made to increase the strength of the company. All recruits must measure up to the army standard in every respect. The fact that the American Federation of Labor has given unanimous endorsement to the National Guard as organized under the Dick militia bill is expected to stimulate recruiting by attracting a class of desirable men who heretofore have not been inclined to consider enlistment.

Captain Herwick has been named delegate to the National Guard convention in Allentown on December 3 and 4.

WISE WORDS

A Physician on Food.

A western physician has views about food. He says:

"I have always believed that the duty of the physician does not reside with treating the sick, but that we owe it to humanity to teach them how to protect their health especially by hygienic and dietetic laws."

"With such a feeling as to my duty I take great pleasure in saying, that, in my own experience and also from personal observation, I have found no food to equal Grape-Nuts and that I find there is almost no limit to the great benefit this food will bring when used in all cases of sickness and convalescence."

"It is my experience that no physician condition forbids the use of Grape-Nuts. To persons in health there is nothing so nourishing and acceptable to the stomach especially at breakfast to start the machinery of the human system on the day's work."

"In cases of indigestion I know that a complete breakfast can be made of Grape-Nuts and cream, and I think it is necessary not to overeat the stomach at the morning meal. I also know the great value of Grape-Nuts when the stomach is too weak to digest other food."

"This is written after an experience of more than 20 years treating all manner of chronic and acute diseases, and the letter is voluntary on my part without any request for it." Name given by Boston Dr. H. H. Crook, M.D.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

HIGH SCHOOL WINS FROM LATROBE TEAM BY LONE TOUCHDOWN

Locals Score Early in Contest But are Unable to Keep Up Pace.

SOGGY FIELD WAS A HADICAP

Contest is a Slow One; Home Team Almost Scores When Player Makes a 60-Yard Gallop Down the Field; Small Crowd Sees the Contest.

Connellsville High won another victory Saturday when Latrobe was defeated, 7-0. The lone touchdown was made within three minutes after the game started and after that the playing was slow on both sides. The field was too slippery for fast running.

Connellsville kicked off, and after making three rushes at the line, Latrobe fumbled. McCormick, playing right tackle, recovered the ball on Latrobe's 15-yard line and Connellsville scored after three attempts. On the third rush Meyer broke through the line, and running ten yards, took the ball over for a touchdown. Smook kicked the goal.

At the beginning of the second half it looked like Latrobe would tie the score. The quarterback receiving the ball went around left and sped off down the field with the entire team after him. Only Meyer was between the runner and the goal line. After running about 60 yards, the man slowed up when approaching Miller, and was tackled by Miller in front and Dugan behind as the runner lay on the ground. The ball was near Connellsville's 20-yard line and after making one first down the Latrobe team lost the ball and Connellsville took it out of danger.

Murray pulled the only other spectacular play of the game. Near the end of the last quarter he intercepted a forward pass made by Latrobe when on their 40-yard line. He got away for 25 yards and it looked like another touchdown for Connellsville, but he was forced out of bounds and tackled at the same time. One man for interference would have given the local boys a second score. Outside of these two runs, no other long gains were made. In some places the field was covered with pools of water.

Latrobe tried two drop kicks during the game, but neither of them went across the bar. The poorest attendance of any game at Latrobe this year was that of Saturday. Only about 50 fans faced the rain and sleet which fell all afternoon.

The game started at 3:15 and four 12-minute quarters were played. A short intermission between halves and the game was finished as rapidly as possible in order that Connellsville could catch the train home. The team returned on the 7:10 train on the Pennsylvania railroad.

Couch Springer used all his substitutes but Davidson and Marietta during the game, and Latrobe ran in many of the second team men.

Hot Tea Breaks A Cold—Try This

Get a small package of Hamburg House Tea, or as the German folks call it "Hamburgher House Tea," at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teaspoon full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure grip, as it opens the pores, relieves congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.—Adv.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and doubts are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."

MONDAY EVENING, NOV. 22, 1915.

COMING POLITICAL ISSUES.

National Preparedness promises to become an issue at Washington this winter. There's going to be a great deal of Democratic fighting over it. It will be the duty of the Republicans to see fair play, especially to themselves and their party.

The Democratic party is divided. The Opportunists under Wilson and Mead, realizing the fatal blunder of the Democratic "Duff" policy, will seek to ride a new horse, and they think they have found the proper mount in National Preparedness. The Peace-at-any-price wing of the party, under the command of the late Peaceful Leader, will oppose the expenditures of large sums of money for the strengthening of our army and navy on the ground that we do not need any such additions to the national defenses, being at peace with all nations and not threatened with war by any.

The policy of National Preparedness can only be properly established with the assistance of Republican votes, and already President Wilson has secured the Republican vote for the bill. He has asked a number of Republican Congressional leaders to meet with him prior to the opening of the coming Congress "for consultation." Honorable James H. Mann, a Republican sentiment when he answers that he is willing to consult with the President upon this or any other matter of legislation, but that he is not willing "to go to the White House to be told what to do." He won't take orders from anybody, not even a Democratic President. He leaves that for Democrats to do. He thinks preparedness is a non-partisan question and should be treated as such.

It is a NON-PARTISAN question in the sense only that it is a NATIONAL question, which ought to appeal to the PATRIOTISM of every citizen, but Democratic opposition may make it a political question. The Republican party has always been for National Preparedness. It is just as much a part of the Republican policy as the doctrine of a Protective Tariff. It is the Democratic party which has in times past been uniformly opposed to both. THESE FACTS THE AMERICAN PEOPLE SHOULD NOT BE DECEIVED FOR ONE MOMENT OF TIME TO OVERLOOK OR FORGET.

The Republicans of the coming Congress will not refuse to do what they can to save their country from the consequences of Democratic folly. But it should be made plain why they do it and why the nation's leaders do. The Republicans should consult with President Wilson. They should do more than this. If they furnish the votes to pass the legislation, they should debate the form of National Preparedness, to the end that credit may be given where credit will be due.

No matter what the DEMOCRATS may try to do in Congress, the chief REPUBLICAN slogan of 1916 still should be PREPAREDNESS and PROTECTION.

DAMN THE YOUTH.

"Damn the Youth!" is the familiar slogan heard at the opening of every session of Congress. Conneltsville has retired from the game, but McKeesport and West New are still keeping it up. The last account we had of their progress they had secured an appropriation for the first lock and dam. The matter has not been heard of since.

Perhaps the Democratic administration has been so hard up that it couldn't furnish the cash for the Youth river improvement. The Youth brothers ought to organize a searching committee and go to Washington and hunt up the money they have coming to them. Instead of clamoring for more they don't need.

A Conneltsville boy who left town a few years ago to engage in the movie business sold out the other day for $25,000, and it wasn't stage money, either.

Conneltsville's new street lighting system was pretty badly shaken up in its first encounter with an ill-tempered weather storm. Those who installed the system do not seem to have had the horsepower of the ridge zephyr properly insured.

The station report that catties carry the germs of anthrax will have little effect upon prevailing fashions. Cats may go out of fashion this season, but not furs.

The Fayette county principals meeting was full of interest, but no report was issued. The interest is lavished for the time generation.

REPUBLICAN'S MOON.

Amid the mad whirl of politics Fayette county never loses prominence in party affairs. With the announcement that State Senator William H. Croft will not be a candidate for the United States Senate comes a Western Pennsylvania movement central in Pittsburgh for the nomination as the coming Republican candidate for State Treasurer of Harrison M. Kephart of Conneltsville.

The suggestion meets the enthusiastic approval of Republicans of Kephart's home city and county, and will receive the careful consideration of the gentleman himself. If he goes into the fight, he will go in to win the nomination and the election. Harrison M. Kephart began his public career in Fayette county in 1895 when he was elected a member of the Legislature. He has been actively engaged in politics ever since and has come to the surface as one of the strong men of his district and section. In 1907 he was chosen Clerk of the State Senate, which position he has held continuously ever since. This has put him in touch with the state politicians everywhere and his wide circle of friends over Pennsylvania will render him well nigh invincible if he comes to stand as a candidate for State Treasurer.

Conneltsville citizens almost without regard to politics unite in the hope that Harrison M. Kephart will be candidate for State Treasurer and will win. It's not often Conneltsville has a state officer.

The Conneltsville street lights have been out of commission for three nights and due allowance for the lack of public service will doubtless be made in the November bill. This bill should be subject to check at the city hall, but where it is apparent that the company is putting forth its best efforts against a condition not of its own making it should have every consideration on the part of its public and private consumers.

The overwhelming defeat of the proposed new Constitution for New York does not seem to have put Elihu Root out of the running for the Republican nomination for President. He is a tough old Root.

Doctor Anna Howard Shaw has declined to head the Woman Suffrage movement longer. Here's a fine chance for a lovely feminine scrap over the election of her successor.

The football spirit that tries to mob one man for rooting for his home club in a strange town is creditable neither to the town nor to the game.

Governor Drumbaugh is credited with an ambition to be Pennsylvania's favorite son in the coming Republican National Convention. What's the matter with Phil Knox of Fayette?

Demora is being handed new industries. The new mills are pushing the town back into the suburbs. It is sometimes a pleasure to be pushed.

Pittsburg has declared against street begging. There is little or no excuse these prosperous times for any kind of beggary, and all such cases should be investigated before being given relief. Conneltsville has not yet been able to stop the practice. It should have stricter regulation at the hands of the authorities.

Winter is with us once again.

J. V. Thompson is an optimist and much depends upon his ability to convert his business to his way of thinking.

Pittsburg proposes a $7,000,000 bond issue with no mention yet of a subway. But there are lots of other holes in Pittsburg.

William H. Donner does not seem to be overlooking any steel mills that are on the bargain counter. Donner is reputed to be closely allied with Henry C. Frick, but just how far the latter is interested, if at all, is not yet apparent. The purchase of the Buffalo steel plant at 65% of its bond issue looks like a good proposition.

The coroner's jury justifies the action of the parents and physician of the Chicago child who permitted it to die rather than to try to save the life of an imbecile and a menace to society.

Water, gas and light meters must be inspected every two years. There is not so much objection to this inspection as there is to the monthly compulsion which the readers make.

The movie interests have firm faith in the future of Conneltsville.

The Belmont Corner cop is going to have a wood base, but it won't make him a bit handsomer. It can't be done.

Pittsburg street is being repaved between jumps.

"The early bird gets the worm."

Shop early for worms.

The Pittsburg street being constructed has been delayed because of the failure of his brick and slug deliveries by the railroads. This is one of the penalties of prosperous times.

Hetty Greene is slight, active and fairly prosperous.

The Lake Erie strikers couldn't see their pay checks without goggles.

The Baltimore divorcee who have concluded to try the matrimonial route again will probably declare that they have more experience than they had before.

Another High School Junior has graduated in Capital finishing school at Cumberland.

The new City Council is apparently organized all but the voting. The natural selection seems to be good.

Uncle Sam is going to show the bellcranks something new in naval architecture.

England seems to have forced out the submarine, but Italy is now feeling its belated attacks.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy — If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there is no need of having a yellow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver. Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of health, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities. You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 14c and 25c per box. All druggists.

her brother and father are not playing the game on the level. The Animated Weekly No. 121 has the most subjects of the year. Tomorrow, Marie Tempest in the five reel comedy, "Mrs. Hattie's Building." Marie Tempest who plays the principal role in "Mrs. Hattie's Building," the Universal five reel farce comedy, spent much time in picking out her kinks before appearing in the film.

One of the gowns she wears is of pale blue satin beautifully draped. Another is a magnificent affair of black satin and net. The upper part of the dressless bodice has a net to correspond with the net petticoat. The skirt and the main part of the skirt are turned back from the front to the sides and to of satin. After Tempest is considered one of the best dressed women on the stage, and by the number and beauty of her gowns in "Mrs. Hattie's Building," she thoroughly vindicates her right to that title.

THE HEART OF NIGHT WIND

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Sign of the Silts.
It was Poppy Ordway who struck the gun from Hampden's hand, sending it flying among the ferns.

"Well have no murder here!" she cried.
Sandy looked at Hampden for one fleeting second as he laid his gun beside him.

"If you move one muscle," he rasped harshly, "I'll kill you on the spot."
Then he eased the slight form of the Preacher down upon the deep pine needles.

Just above the heart blood was pouring from the shabby habit. Sandy tore it away, to find a clean small hole in the white skin, which was fine and delicate as a woman's. The ball had gone straight through, tearing a huge ragged aperture where it emerged in the back from which the red stream flowed in a flood.

"Cloth!" cried Sandy, "give me cloth!"

His voice broke the spell that bound Silts and who sprang forward, tearing her garments, ripping out of her breast some tattered womanly vesture that was white and soft.

"Oh, my God above the sea!" she was crying with gasping sobs, "Lord of the heavens! Spare him! Spare him!"
And only Poppy Ordway saw the pocket which tumbled unheeded to the ground. With one callous, graceful movement she threw herself forward, snatched it up and hid it in her own bosom.

Sandy hastily made compresses and bound them upon the wounds. He tore off what was left of his tattered shirt and added it. He took handfuls of leaves from the hazelbrush and put them over the compresses, binding them tighter and tighter. But it was heart's blood that was loosened and each effort to stop it was futile.

It was soon evident that the feet in their heavy shoes had gone their last journey upon the hills, that the triumphant flute had piped its last song of victory.

"My children," said the Preacher, "I promised to come when you should need me. I have served a need. You are young, my son, and the path of youth is fair. There are too many prisoners thereon to sacrifice one year of it. I am old—old!"

Here Silts hung herself upon her knees beside him, unable to control herself, rocking to and fro after her fashion, her hands wringing and a terrible anguish upon her face.

The handsome blue eyes turned wonderingly upon her.
"Daughter—little one of the tender heart—hush! I hear strange sounds and I would listen."

He closed his eyes and lay for a time in silence, the delicate tracery of his face emerging more clearly as a pallor spread beneath it. It was the divine record of years spent with his God in the high places, though here and there a drooping line bespoke a vague, forgotten sadness.

Presently he murmured:
"The Winds of the Mighty One are upon the sounding board of the hills! Ah!"

Again a silence and he opened his eyes with a return to earth. But in them had come the dimness of dream, and half-remembered years and times and places.

They raved wonderingly into the dark, tear-blinded ones of Silts bending above. For a long time the old man lay, staring up with that look of wonder. Then a great joy broke on his face with a shining smile, and he struggled to raise himself on an arm.

"Kahwanna!" he cried, "Kahwanna!"

It was a call from a far-distant past, it thrilled that little company of listeners with its ecstasy.

"Why—why—What have I dreamed, my princess of the hills, that you have seemed so far away? What was it—Ah I have forgot! But you are here at last!"

He raised pained, trembling arms to the girl's neck.

"You are back from the gates of death that I fancied had closed upon you! You are back. . . . And there is forgiveness in your dark eyes. Oh, my love, there is forgiveness!"

His lips quivered a bit and he went on.
"Did I dream of the great wrong I did you, Kahwanna? Oh, have you forgiven?"

The blue eyes were tragic in their puzzled wonder, their shining joy, and the voice was desperately earnest.

For a moment Silts checked her anguish and strove to understand. Then something, some divine instinct, seemed to give her wisdom and she smiled tremulously.

"All is well," she said pitifully, "I have forgiven."
"Thank God!" cried the old man sharply, "oh, God, I thank thee! The way is light at last!"

He tried to raise himself on an elbow again.
"But how does it happen? I saw you die in the lodge of Kolawmie with the babe that you bore me for love on your breast—and yet—yet—I have you again! Did I dream, oh, my princess of the little tribe?"

"A dream," sobbed Silts softly, "only a dream."
He looked long into her half-frightened face.

"I have searched the world for you, my maid of service with the gentle eyes—eyes like a deer's for softness. Oh, Kahwanna! I have chanted the marriage service, that I never said for you in the days of my youth, a thousand times among the hills! I have mated you in heaven throughout the years wherein I lost you! I have wept for the wilderness that I crushed, at dawn and dusk! I have tried to stone."

There was a pathetic, eager justification in the weakening voice and the others, all aware that they witnessed the last act in some forgotten tragedy of the Preacher's life, stood in silence, unconscious of the darkening smoke clouds, the menace of the rising rain.

"You bore on your face the sign of the Silts women—the three bars of Hondago, of Faithfulness and of Service—and yet you were not of their blood, but of my own. Only Kolawmie knew how you came among them, a wee, dark child, how they took you in and gave you a name, and he never told. You were red to me, Kahwanna—a soft-eyed creature of the wild—and you were my woman, bought with a white man's kiss!"

Here Sandy shrank as if at a blow, drawing in his breath with a sigh, but the Preacher hurried on, as if to tell all that had lain upon his heart those many years.

"You would have followed me across the world upon your knees, and you served me like a slave. And I—I repaid you with a white man's coin! I left you to break your heart among the dusky people who were kinder than I. . . . But the Winds of God blow upon my conscience and my heart and I returned. Your face and your faithful eyes, waiting, waiting, brought me back from the far cities—only to see you die in the lodge of Kolawmie with my babe on your breast! Or—say I but dreamed, Kahwanna?"

With falling sight the speaker tried to pierce the mystery, gazing at Silts. "Did I dream of death and resurrection—and of Kolawmie, who—bent above the babe to put that sign upon her face? I struck his hand away when it laid not but a fraction of the fatal bar—the sign that said you were wild, that forbade you to the shallow cities, that made you a white man's toy! You—yes—Kahwanna—ah, I have forgot. What is it I would remember?"

The eagerness left the Preacher's eyes, they became suddenly calm and calm.

With a cry that cut high above the steady sounds of the wind and the fire Silts sprang up, a hand lunged to her lips, where the sign of the Silts stood out—broken in its inception!

"My father!" she cried pitifully, "oh, my father!"

Sandy was breathing heavily, a mist in his eyes and a sadness upon his heart. His victory over Hampden had lost its savor.

But the past with its pitiful shadows had drifted away from the Preacher for ever and the look of gentle tenderness had returned.

"My daughter," he said softly, "why do you weep? Ah—the night closes down and it is dark. I have lost my way. What is the path?"

His fingers groped blindly for the flute.

"What is the way out of the labyrinth of youth—and sin—and pain—loneliness? Ah, I have forgot!"

With a sudden inspiration Sandy stopped and picked up the instrument. He had played a bit at college. Softly, silverly, the joyous notes began, "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" to go on to that ancient plea of trusting faith.

"Other refuge have I none, Hallelujah my helpless soul to thee," a strange voice of glory amid the death and danger, the sin and stress of the moment.

A holy peace spread on the white features.

"Why, certainly!" whispered the traveler of the hills, "how could I forget! That is the Way out."

And then, "Hush! The murmur of many wings. Ah, it is God's hand! I go—do profound! Gloria in excelsis!"

With that last whispered word the wandering player of hymns, the preacher to the irresponsibles and the lover of humanity tumbled stiffly at his habit's skirt. Sandy knelt, found a deep pocket, felt therein and brought out a small Bible of a long-past day. Its edges were thin and frayed and greatly worn. Its stiff back, with the age-black, raised lettering, had long since lost its corners. He knew it instantly for the counterpart of that one on Silts' stand in the little south room. It had many openings of its own, and it fell apart, first at the spines and then at a passage whose beginning caught his eye as he placed it in the loving hands that made to grasp its familiar bulk—and failed. The stately woman whose solemn forecast had struck him once when he sought for some clue to the Preacher's identity now seemed to ring in his ears, a stupendous ratiocination for the nameless, high-souled, dither-from-the-ways-of-men who had spent his blameless life in fanciful atonement for a shadowy wrong.

"Who shall ascend into the hill of the Lord? He that hath clean hands and a pure heart, who hath not lifted his soul unto vanity, but sworn deceitfully."

The Preacher was of that past which he had so long forgotten and which Destiny had decreed should dash back to him for one revealing moment.

CHAPTER XXX.

"The Night Wind is Not Afraid to Die." Sandy laid the Bible under the lifeless hand looked about desperately for something to cover the glorified face between its white curls, and finding nothing but the tall ferns gathered an aerial which he spread over the body.

Then he faced Hampden in deadly quiet.

"I had meant prison," he said, "now mean the electric chair."

The other laughed.
"Mean an' be damned!" he said insolently, "you'll never send me there."

His burning eyes were covering the clump of ferns that held his gun, but Sandy went over and picked it up. He stood a moment considering.

A hot wind was whipping up the dips on every side and Black Belt was stepping uneasily, pointing anxious eyes this way and that. Coonsah had crawled to where Silts knelt, weeping, with her hands over her face.

He crouched low to the ground and laid his heavy muzzle against her boot, whining dolorously.

Suddenly, in the momentary silence, Poppy Ordway spoke. Her face was flushed like an April dawn. Chance and the courage of the last throw lent it the last touch of ravishing charm.

"Kismet!" she said, "I am the only one who wins in this game! Hampden, you're right. I've bought you with your own coin. And let me tell you Hampden, that you were disgustingly easy."

The timberman winced at the brutal words.

His florid face darkened with rage. "Ah, yes! So you won his love with your pretty detective work! You'll hurry him and settle down!"

Thus was the crucial moment presented to Poppy Ordway all an identity, and she recognized it instantly. It sent a chill to her daring heart, then fired it with that love of chance, that ability to cast great stakes on a single throw, which in a better nature would have made her great.

She felt with a flash of her genius the drama of the situation, the tense readiness of the moment for wild, fantastic things, and accepted it at once.

"Yes!" she cried, "yes! I offer Sandy you—and my soul!"

With a beautiful gesture she stopped toward Sandy and held out both hands, her golden head up, her slumberous blue eyes sensuous and black with excitement, her whole exquisite body a lure with the mighty abandon of her passion and her reckless gift.

"Walter," she said tremulously, "I have said there is no law for a genius I say it again. I can save your future—and I give you myself along with it, because I love you! Oh, you can never know how I love you!"

Her golden voice rose with the force of the emotion that shook her, broke and failed, and she stood panting.
